In 2020, graduated from the Detroit Police Academy and has since served in the DPD's 8th precinct. While in Detroit, he was trained as a shot spotter, firearms inspector and interdiction of illicit drugs and weapons.

"Throughout the Country law enforcement agencies are struggling with police recruitment. Standing here today, I am proud to say that we are still able to attract quality candidates. You can clearly see that after hearing the bios on each of our new hires and our promoted sergeants. Another common factor is how so many of our police hires grew up locally. That says a lot for our community. Over the years, we have seen a large number of new police officers come to Westland from other agencies because they grew up here. We have seen that in our police department, our fire department, City Council and even the Mayor who grew up in Westland and went to John Glenn. This goes to show the importance of programs such as the Explorers and the PSA program. With those programs, we are helping develop future Westland Police Officers," says Chief of Police Jeff Jedrusik.
